The Source Team Co-Authors NEJM Article on State Public Option Plans

As states like Nevada, Colorado, and Washington push forward with their state public option efforts, a new article in New England Journal of Medicine, co-authored by Erin Fuse Brown and The Source's Katie Gudiksen and Jaime King, takes a closer look at the key provisions of each of the plans. The article discusses potential challenges to these state public option plans and most importantly, whether they can effectively improve healthcare coverage and affordability.

Listen to Erin Fuse Brown discuss lessons from these states in a podcast for NEJM.