

The Source's Jaime King Awarded American Antitrust Institute Award

We are excited to announce that The Source's Executive Editor Jaime S. King has been awarded the Jerry S. Cohen Award by the American Antitrust Institute for her article "The Anti-Competitive Potential of Cross-Market Mergers in Health Care," which she co-authored with Erin C. Fuse Brown of Georgia State University College of Law. The article won in the "Best Antitrust and Mergers Article" category and discusses the potential for cross-market acquisition to harm competition, and whether existing antitrust laws could support challenges to cross-market acquisitions.

The Cohen Award was created in honor of the late Jerry S. Cohen and given each year to the best antitrust writing of the prior year. Read more about the Award here.